

BA DATA MODELING

INTRODUCTION

In present times, fast-paced business environment, analysts must possess skills to effectively communicate business rules, goals, structure and workflow to all relevant stakeholders. Modeling techniques is basically used to improve and analyzed the current process. A working knowledge of modeling is the key to ensuring that this business challenge is met. In the basic sense, modeling is the method of doing business by which a company can sustain itself.

Modeling is typically performed by business analysts and managers who are seeking to improve process efficiency and quality. This course is designed with a series of activities in which student will gain practical modeling experience.

In the context of a real-world case study, this course will help you to apply best practices in modeling to fulfill your crucial role as a business analyst.

SAP Training, SAP Training Toronto, SAP Training Mississauga